hill's Spring Book Fair. The book is available on amazon.com and area book stores.

The illustrations in the recently released children's book I Can Love You, Mommy may look familiar to some Lakehill students and parents.

Jenny Livengood

That's because the illustrator is Lakehill third-grade teacher Jenny Livengood.

The book, written by Mary Beth Gresham, is a heart-warming story about children with special needs.

Livengood, whose nephew was born with special needs, said the book has come to mean a great deal to her. I Can Love You, Mommy was featured at Lake-Livengood is working on illustrations for other books by Gresham, as well as a book by Lakehill parent Margi Evans. She hopes to finish the illustrations during the summer.

Livengood said she has always had a love for drawing. Although she has never taken art classes, she never misses out on the opportunity to just doodle.

"I used to write in my school journals that I wanted to be an illustrator and a teacher when I grew up," she said. "I guess I am on the right track."
